Industrial Attachment Report

Chapter 1

Introduction

The 24-week Industrial Attachment (IA) program organized by the Office of Professional Attachments (OPA) Nanyang Technological University provides every student an opportunity to apply the skills and knowledge achieved during the course of study in the industrial environment and to acquire new skills in managing relationships and carrying out the jobs assigned. It is also an opportunity to improve social, communication and technical skills needed for working life and a chance to keep abreast with the dynamic changing industry.

This chapter gives introduction of Leica Instruments (Singapore) Pte Ltd (LIS) and the Optics department, where the author was attached. The purpose of the report, followed by the nature and scope of the presentation to address the next chapters are also being explained in this chapter. This final report is mainly to provide a summary of the industrial practice experience.

1.1 LIS Background

1.1.1 LIS history

Leica Instruments (Singapore) Pte Ltd (LIS) was established in Singapore in 1971 as a subsidiary of Wild Heerbrugg of Switzerland. It was then called Wild (Singapore) Pte Ltd. In April 1989, the company name was changed to Wild Leitz (Singapore) Pte Ltd when corporate merged with Ernst Leitz Wetzlar. In
